

Adam Richter House
Accident
Private

The Adam Richter House is a two and a half story, frame, cross-gable roof dwelling with a three-bay, center-door facade. The facade points N. One-story hipped-roofed porches cover the facade and S elevation.

This house was built, according to the current owner, for Adam Richter, of the Richter family which ran the tannery across the road from this house. The house which features elements of the Queen Anne style, was probably built near the height of the tannery's prosperity.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Adam Richter House is located on the south side of Accident-Bitteringer Road on the eastern side of the town of Accident. The site consists of the house and four small outbuildings. The site is surrounded by trees.

The main house is a two and a half story, frame, cross-gable-roofed dwelling with a three-bay, center-door facade. The facade points N, one story, hipped-roofed porches cover the facade and south elevation.

The house rests on a coursed, cut stone foundation and is covered with white German siding. The windows are one over one sash with plain board surrounds. The facade door displays a transom. One each elevation, the attic half-story displays a modified Palladian window with a simple drip-molding.

The cross-gable roof is covered with slate shingles and has a continuous box cornice. The house has two interior brick stove chimneys, one on the E elevation and one on the S elevation. Both porches are supported by wooden Roman Doric columns. The facade porch has dentil-molding on its cornice.

The interior of the house has a central staircase and the first floor has a four-room plan.

Just south of the house is a small outbuilding which rests on a poured concrete foundation. The walls are covered with white German siding. The single windows on its east and south elevations are one over one sash with plain board surrounds. On the north elevation is a five-panel door. The gable roof has a cross gable on its N elevation and is covered with slate shingles. The interior consists of one room. Attached to the ceiling are flywheels, indicating that the building probably housed machinery.

SE of the house are a storage building and a small privy. Both are covered with white German siding. Closer to the house, also to the southeast, is a gable-roofed frame garage.
